Contact us for your Burmese translation project now!

Untapped means potential! Remaining one of the least developed countries though, Burma, or shall we call it Myanmar alternatively, is an untapped market with great economic potential. Rich in precious stones such as sapphires, pearls, jade, and, most notably, rubies, Burma is truly a treasure chest of the world.

Hardly find reliable Burmese translation services to help plug in to the Burma market or its resources? Well, look no further and let our professional Burmese translators kill this mess for you so that you can draw yourself out to focus on the business you excel at!

Why it matters?

Burma is sitting at the crossroads that bridges Southeast Asian countries and the Indian Peninsula with China on its northeast. Besides the superior geographical advantages, a total of 42 million people speaking Burmese and the territory ranked 40th globally together comprise Burma's huge economic potential. Rich in precious stones, Burma produces over 90% of the world's rubies, which are famous for their purity giving off a rare pigeon's blood red glow.
