□The CCJK SOLUTION:

1. CCJK assigned a very skilled and professional designer and programmer to do this job. To make sure of the high quality, firstly, the designer designed two types of homepage drafts for the client's reference and choice, and made the revision accordingly until the client felt totally satisfied. After this, the website development went into the second step to make the inner design drafts accordingly. CCJK's programmer finished this quickly and sent to the client for reference.

2. There's not any problem for CCJK to update the wording and information accordingly, as CCJK's commitment is doing unlimited revision until the client's 100% satisfaction. The programmer did all the revision and built the website up. To make sure the client would be totally satisfied with the site, CCJK provided the website demo firstly, then had it launched finally.

3. CCJK had never encountered such problem for website running in IPAD or iPhone. But the chief engineer tried his best to find out a way to solve it finally.
