

About Client:

The Fashion Institute of Technology (FIT) is a globally recognized college for design, fashion, business, and technology, located in New York City. As part of the State University of New York (SUNY) system, FIT has been shaping the future of the fashion and creative industries since 1944. The institute offers a diverse range of programs, including fashion design, marketing, textiles, and business strategies, attracting students from around the world. With a strong emphasis on innovation and global collaboration, FIT serves as a leading institution for aspiring professionals seeking to excel in the dynamic fashion industry.

About the Project:

The Fashion Institute of Technology wanted to translate its magazine PDF files from Swedish/ Hebrew/ Russian to English. The CCJK team made a careful analysis and assigned the project to our relevant translators.

Solution We Provided:

1. All translation tasks were handled by native translators with extensive experience. To ensure the highest quality, CCJK implemented a rigorous TEP (Translation, Editing, and Proofreading) process, involving three different linguists.
2. The projects were immediately assigned to CCJK's network of professional foreign translators. The team carefully communicated all relevant job requirements, ensuring that the translators fully understood the client's expectations.
3. The CCJK team successfully completed the translation within just two working days. Our strict TEP procedures guaranteed accuracy and consistency, delivering magazine files that were flawlessly translated into the target languages.
4. After translation, CCJK's DTP professionals worked on the formatting to ensure it matched the original source files. The final documents were polished and publication-ready.

5. The client was highly satisfied with the final translation. No revisions were required, and they confirmed that the translated content sounded perfect.
