

About the project:

The client has several business corresponding emails and contracts that need to be translated into simplified Chinese. The files are quite urgent, a quicker turnaround time will do huge help to the client.

Our Solution:

- 1. Before starting the project, we have to find out if the client has any specific translation requirements. For example, delivery format, terminology, style and other restrictions. CCJK always offer tailored translation services to best suit the client's real needs.
- 2. The project is assigned to native Chinese translators who have years of experience in professional field. A carefully vetted translator will fully study the terminologies and project background before actual translation.
- 3. CCJK will keep touch with the client throughout the translation process. For one hand, the client can track of the project, for the other hand, we can immediately communicate with the client for any project queries or any changes for the delivery time.
- 4. A second translator will be added to review the translated file by using tracking changes. Our project manager will send back the revision to original translator for final confirmation.
- 5. Every client will enjoy extra benefits from our translation services. We are always happy to create a term list for future use.

Client's Feedback:

I've now forwarded it on so CCJK've managed to put us back on track.
