

About the project:

Rickmer Group wanted to translate its code of conduct from German to Simplified Chinese. CCJK team made a careful analysis and assigned the project to our relevant translators.

The services including:

German to Simplified Chinese Translation; Desktop publishing service

Our solution for German language translation: All translation tasks were finished by native translators with abundant experience. Furthermore, CCJK ran a strict TEP (Translation, Editing and Proofreading) by 3 different linguists to make sure of top quality.

The Code of Conduct should be translated very accurately so that it could be understood and carried out by the employees well. CCJK team made a careful analysis about the file and found the right translators in its database. Guaranteed by strict TEP procedure, CCJK team delivered the translation file with good formatting within 3 working days.

The formatting of the translated file was almost the same as the source file. The client was very impressed by our fast delivery time and translation quality. The client made no revisions towards our translation file and comments” The translation quality is perfect” .

About client:

A family’s involvement in shipping

How it all began: 175 years ago, in June 1834, Rickmer Clasen Rickmers, born on the island of Heligoland, founded the Rickmers shipyard in Bremerhaven, thus laying the foundations for the family’s long involvement in the shipping business. In addition to the shipyard and the shipping business, the trained ship builder also became involved in rice trading.

By 1890, under the management of the second Rickmers generation, the Rickmers Rice Mill had developed into one of the leading rice processing companies in Europe. The following generations entered into steam shipping, the Asia trade as well as liner services. Wars and new beginnings also determined their actions. Thus the Rickmers history also reflects the social history of the early 19th century.

Today, Bertram Rickmers, the fifth generation of entrepreneurs, runs Rickmers Group with a fleet of more than 115 vessels, 3 200 crew on board and 450 employees ashore worldwide.
