![CCJK - A Brand of marshub]

About project:
Slicefactory, a software development company, reached us for translation of their google extensions/applications into as many languages as possible, even some tribe languages and aboriginal languages, such as Gujarati, Malayalam, Swahili and Oriya etc.

Since 2010, CCJK helped the client translate their google extensions games into 45 languages worldwide each year!

Our solution:
CCJK has a resource team of 3 members, whose duties are trying to get in touch with as many translators as possible, test them and absorb those qualified talents into our translator base. Until now we have reserved thousands of native and skilled translators for every language in the world!

With the pre-work of our resource team, we soon reached to native translators of every specified language, deliver the translation of all language-pairs ahead of time.

The client couldn't believe we could submit the translation much earlier than the schedule, because they themselves were unable find corresponding translators for some languages at all. But we did it!
