

About Client:

XENON is a well-known German manufacturer that specializes in assembly and inspection lines for automated mechatronic component production. With expertise as an independent system integrator, XENON designs and delivers state-of-the-art high-tech products to automotive, electronics, energy, and medical companies.

About The Project:

XENON Automation Asia Limited approached us to translate their technical documentation and maintenance plans from English to Chinese. The CCJK team conducted a meticulous analysis of the project's technical requirements to streamline our translation project management processes accordingly.

The Services Including:

- English To Chinese Translation

Our Solution:

- The entire translation project was managed by skilled native translators with years of experience in the field.
- CCJK followed a strict TEP (translation, editing, and proofreading) approach by three different linguists to ensure top quality results.
- We kept the client in the loop for feedback and promptly made revisions to make our translations well-aligned with the client's objectives.
- We adopted a client-centric approach by gathering detailed information and retranslating technical terms as per client requirements.
- The CCJK team delivered the translation file within 5 working days. The client is very impressed by our fast delivery time and good quality.

Client Feedback:

“Thanks for your perfect translation service”
