Quality Control

The Document and legal implications of an inaccurate Document translation can be devastating, and it is for this reason that CCJK Translation has developed a stringent quality control process.

Translation of your Document document will first be assigned to a translator whose training and experience correspond to the needs of the document in question. On completion of the translation, the document will then be edited, a process in which the language of the target document is rigorously checked for accuracy and consistency.

The document will then be extensively proofread, so that CCJK Translation can guarantee that the translated document is a true and accurate translation of the original text.

We appreciate how important it can be to maintain strict confidentiality in particular for Document documents. To support this commitment, we will sign general or specific non-disclosure agreements as and when required to by the client.
